FROM WASHINGTON.

The Russian Ambassador—Gen. Pierce's Pay-Cases, Washington—Remedy Land Warrants—Mex. Washington, Wednesday, Oct. 31.

The Russian Chargé d'Affaires has no information of the advent, as reported, of an ambassador from the Czar, with a confidential communication respective of the terms on which the United States may mediate in the existing European conflict.

Next month officers will receive upwards of one-half pay, by virtue of the recent appointment, dating from March 30, 1855, or about $1,000 a year additional to his pay and emoluments as Major-General.

Commodore FARRAGUT left here this afternoon to join his flag ship, the Potomac, at New-York, which sails for the West Indies shortly.

A private letter, received by the Affairs, states that although Mr. MASON, our Minister to France, is considered little less critical at present, his friends yet hope to see the Senator resume his seat in the Senate next winter; and further, that he stands high at Court.

The whole number of applications for Bounty Land Warrants at the Pension Office under the late act is 220,000, and of Warrants issued, 60,000. The applications are now decreasing; only 5,000 have been received during October.

Nothing has been heard from the British Government respecting the representations of our Government to it concerning the violation of our neutrality laws by English officials, in the matter of enlisting troops for the Crimea.

Destruction of a Ferry-Boat by Fire.

PHILADELPHIA, Wednesday, Oct. 31.

The steamboat Mariner, belonging to the West Jersey Ferry, was totally destroyed by fire at 3 o'clock this morning, while lying at her wharf at Camden. The Company had just completed some repairs upon her, and the fires were kindled under her boilers for the first time yesterday. The loss is $25,000. Insurance $10,000.

Massachusetts Politics.

BOSTON, Wednesday, Oct. 31.

Messrs. RUFUS CHOATE, GEORGE S. HILLARD, and FRED W. CRAVEROFT addressed the Whigs in Faneuil Hall this evening. The hall was crowded to its utmost capacity, and the enthusiasm was ahead of anything yet witnessed in our political canvass.

Marine Disaster.

BOSTON, Wednesday, Oct. 31.

The ship Governor, which left Boston on Monday night in tow of the steamer Achilles, for New-York, struck on Pollock Rip this morning, but got off at 4 o'clock this afternoon, and proceeded on her way.

Democratic Meeting.

SYRACUSE, Wednesday Oct. 31.

Governor SEYMOUR addressed the Democracy this afternoon, and JOHN VAN BUREN this evening, at Writing Hall. The place was crowded.

Fire at Buffalo.

BUFFALO, Wednesday, Oct. 31.

The machine shop of the Buffalo Car Works was burned last night. Loss $10,000. Fully insured.

Steamer Burst.

NEW-ORLEANS, Tuesday, Oct. 30.

The steamer Exchange was destroyed by fire today on Red River, with 250 bales of cotton on board. No lives were lost.

Russian Affairs.

NEW-ORLEANS, Tuesday, Oct. 30.

By the Granada we have Havana dates to the 27th inst., but the news is wholly unimportant.

The Alabama at Savannah.

The steamship Alabama, from New-York, arrived here this morning.

CITY POLITICS.

Third Senatorial District—Hard Meeting in Favor of Thomas J. Barr.

The friends of Mr. THOMAS J. BARR, Senator from the Third (New-York) District in the last Legislature, met last (Tuesday) night, at the Shakspeare Hotel, for the purpose of joining in a demonstration in favor of that gentleman's reelection. An ambitious effort was made outside to attract an audience. Two or three tar-barrels, which were lighted in the square, cast a lurid glare over the neighboring houses, and the crowds of dirty urchins and rough looking customers of maturer years, who surrounded the bonfires, gave expression to their sympathetic feelings in favor of Mr. BARR by loud and reiterated hurrahs. The illuminations were materially aided by a corpulent old gentleman, standing at a doorway opposite, who amused himself and a group of admiring youngsters, innocent of soap, by discharging a limited number of modest blue rockets, whose flight generally culminated in the upper windows on the other side of the way. A band was stationed at the door of the hotel, and discoursed a series of lively airs; subsequently, when the crowd had gathered into the large room of the hotel, the musicians took their place at the rear of the platform, and varied the proceedings by performing in the intervals between the speeches, the popular tunes of "Nothing Around," "Pop goes the Weasel," and various other compositions equally well known and classic.

The attendance within was very large—almost filling the hall, in fact—and tremendously enthusiastic, of course. On the platform we observed Col. Denman, Mr. F. Crowe, Mr. Horace F. Clark, Mr. Maurice O'Keefe, Mr. Barr (the candidate,) Mr. Jas. M. Sheehan, Capt. J. W. Turner, Mr. Robert Livingston, and a number of lesser lights.

On motion of Mr. O'KEEFE, Col. DENMAN was unanimously nominated Chairman. An enormous list of Vice Presidents was proposed and adopted. After which,

Col. DENMAN, in returning his thanks for the honor conferred upon him in electing him to the Chair, informed his hearers that from an old fogy he had become a Hard Shell, and felt convinced that the only candidate before the people of this district ought in the present crisis to support, was Thomas J. Barr. [Applause.]

Mr. RENZY LIVINGSTON read a series of resolutions referring in laudatory terms to Senator Barr's action in opposing the Maine Law, strongly condemnatory of Know-Nothingism, and bitterly critical on Mr. Daniel E. Sickles, the Half-Shell opponent. The resolutions were adopted by acclamation, and Mr. Barr, as the Chairman's desire, got nine cheers.

Judge MORTON addressed the meeting from the stand in commendation of Mr. Barr and condemnation of Mr. Sickles as a "squatter" and interloper.

Capt. TURNER indulged Hunter in an eloquent vituperation of the Hard-Shell candidate, and, like his predecessor, was loudly cheered.

Mr. HORACE F. CLARK, in compliance with emphatic and noisy calls, which the Chairman found it difficult to subdue, mounted the table amid vehement cheers, and made an effective speech, during which, Mr. Charley Spencer, at one time reporter for that able and influential, but now unfortunately defunct journal the "Whatsoever Express," treated the merits of the candidate to a variety of ludicrous antics on the rear of the platform. His admirers had a hearty relish, however, at the expense of a free bath, and left the assemblage minus a half of the members.

Mr. LIVINGSTON of the Third Ward, Mr. WATSON of the Eleventh, and Mr. BARR, himself, subsequently addressed the meeting, and an adjournment took place about 10 o'clock.

Daniel E. Sickles for Senator.

The Supporters of Daniel E. Sickles met en masse in Lispenard-street, near Broadway, last evening. The attendance was not very large, but a big drum and a platoon of little boys made the necessary noise. These sky-rockets and a dozen cannon not well trimmed, and several lanterns did their duty. Emanuel B. Hart presided. Mr. Sickles made the first speech with his hat on—an which however, he made a pathetic apology. He came down upon "the demagogues who sought to perpetuate the division in the Democratic ranks, when no such division was necessary," and thought all should unite to resist the invasion of the Hunkers, the Know-Nothing class, "Black Republicanism" and prerogative Hunx-Nothingism.

He was followed by E. Ross Shaw, John Creighton and E. F. Carr. Mr. Carr believed the people wanted to send to the Senate a man of broken and honest hay, should give their votes for Daniel E. Sickles, and not for Thomas J. Barr!

The meeting then endorsed Mr. Sickles's nomination, and then marched through the streets in procession.

Thirteenth Ward Hard-Shell Reformation Meeting.

A meeting of the Hard-Shell Democratic Electors of the Thirteenth Ward was held last night at Clinton Garden, Clinton-street, to ratify the Ward Ticket. The attendance was good, but the speakers announced were not forthcoming, except Mr. W. J. Rose, who appeared at a late period of the evening. Hon. Thomas J. Mooney, who was the great card of the occasion, did not appear at all.

Capt. Tilley was called to the Chair, and Mr. Hall, Murphy was the first speaker.

When he had finished, the resolutions of the meeting were read by Mr. Dunn, the Vice President, and unanimously adopted.

A German gentleman then addressed the meeting with a strong German accent, and a very German appreciation of English. He said that he believed there were two Democratic Parties, and he wanted some a chance for outdoor Democrats. He was opposed to Obstructionists and Yes, who would shout as do of one brainless, as Hunkers would shout the Maine Laws and the Know-Nothings. There were all sorts of Shaks, Hard, Soft, Half, and he supposed there would soon be Quarter-Shells. He went for anything that for the best name, wherever they could be found. He would go for the Dickey and for the whole Dickey, for it had the names upon it of good men. True Democrats should support the Democratic Platform.

The next speaker was Mr. ROSE, the Vice-President, who spoke with much force, and elicited much applause, after whom appeared

Mr. W. J. ROSE, who spoke for nearly an hour, and charmed to silence a meeting which had previously been noisy and turbulent. He denounced the Democracy in general and the candidates of the Thirteenth Ward in particular. He denied the Republicans of Know-Nothing politics, and severely reprobated the Know-Nothings. Three cheers were accorded him at the conclusion of his speech.

The meeting then adjourned.

We understand there will be a mass meeting at the same place on Saturday night, to ratify the nomination of John M. Murphy.

O. U. A. Denouncing the K. N.'s.

We have repeatedly stated that the O. U. A.'s are entirely dissatisfied with the conduct of the K. N.'s, protest against their political actions, and can by no means be depended on to swell the K. N. vote next Tuesday. Several correspondents want to see the documents. Here is one, from which we only cut off the names of those signing it:

NEW-YORK, Wednesday, Oct. 24, 1855.

MOST NOBLE EAGLES, OFFICERS AND BROTHERS: At a meeting of Alpha Chapter, No. 1, O. U. A., held on Wednesday evening, Oct. 24, the following resolutions were unanimously adopted, and ordered to be transmitted to the several Chapters in the State:

Resolved, That Alpha Chapter, No. 1, concur in the action taken by Hancock Chapter, No. 14, Washington Chapter, No. 2, Henry Clay Chapter, No. 61, and such other Chapters of our Order as have declared their expression of disapproval of the proceeding of the Executive Convention at its meeting on the 8th inst., and unites with those Chapters in entering their solemn protest against the action of said Convention in its indorsement, for the support of this Order, of an expelled member, knowing him to be such.

Resolved, That such recommendation is a direct violation of the fundamental principles of our Order, and demands the condemnation and disapproval of every Chapter.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be transmitted to the several Chapters throughout the State.

Signed by the Sachem and the C. of the C.

Bust of George Law.

A few weeks since we announced to the public the progress of a noble bust, in clay, of Mr. LAW, by T. D. JONES, sculptor. It is now completed, cast in plaster, and ready for the moulds, and the taking of duplicate copies for the friends of the last of the Greeks. It strikes us as far in advance of all of Mr. Jones' former efforts. For massive Titanic character—great fidelity to nature—texture, breadth, and boldness of treatment, it has received the unanimous approval of artists and connoisseurs who have seen it. All persons interested in sculpture will do well to call and see it at the studio of Mr. JONES, (room No. 16,) No. 847 Broadway.

German Mass Meeting—Who Moulded Bills Jackson?

A large mass meeting of the German Democrats of the Fourteenth Ward was held, last night, at Mechanics' Hall. Hester W. M. E. Voutechel presided and C. L. Richter was president. There being many persons who did not understand German present after Mr. Voutechel had briefly spoken, Judge Phillips addressed the meeting. Mr. Ira B. Davis also spoke and advocated free trade in liquor. He also stated that Mr. C. L. Richter had really moulded the statue of Jackson, at Washington, for which Mr. Mills got the credit. We judged, on leaving, that there was very good material present for a row, when the ratification of candidates came up.

Ninth Ward Republican Meeting.

A meeting of the Republicans of the Ninth Ward was held last evening at the Bleecker Buildings, Councilman Brush presiding. Messrs. Brainhall, of Brooklyn, and William H. Burleigh were the speakers. The latter gentleman was greeted with hooting and hissing to such an extent that a prominent K. N. was under the necessity of taking the stand and requesting those of his party who refused to take their hats off, to keep some kind of order. The confusion was thereupon somewhat abated, although some persons still seemed to prefer that sort of order called disorder.

Fifteenth Ward Republican Club.

There was a very friendly and pleasant meeting of the Fifteenth Ward Republican Club last evening, at No. 650 Broadway. F. J. Ottarson presided, and Chas. W. Leeds was Secretary. Several new members were enrolled, and effective steps taken for a thorough distribution of tickets. Steps were also taken for holding a public meeting previous to election. The old Fifteenth has always been the banner ward of the Whig Party, and no doubt will be of the Republicans. It gave less votes for Mayor Wood last year than any other Ward.

The Liquor Dealers.

Pursuant to a "most strenuous" call, inviting "all members of the Liquor Dealers' Society opposed to political dictation and in favor of the regularly nominated ticket of the Convention," to attend, a large meeting of Liquor Dealers was held at Odd Fellows' Hall last evening. The proceedings were harmonious, and resulted in a vote to adhere to a former resolution of the body not to make any City and County nominations, but to support the regular Liquor Dealers' State ticket. And so Col. FERSON is again successful.

Political Strikers.

It seems that the Strikers are around and trying to influence the ballot box into the service of the pocket. We have received the following letter from the gentleman to whom it was addressed, but we are unacquainted with the parties whose signatures are attached:

NEW-YORK, Oct. 29, 1855.

JOHN HARRISON, ESQ.—Sir: At a meeting of the "American Union Club," held October 29, you were duly nominated to the office of member of Assembly from the Third and Fifth Wards, to be supported by them at the ensuing election.

If you conclude to accept this nomination, you are hereby informed that a resolution has been adopted by the Club assessing you $50.

We have the honor to be, with great respect, your obedient servants,

WM. H. MACKAY, ALEXANDER LAWRENCE, } Committee.

The Metropolitan Meeting.

The Reformers held their mass meeting to-night but the occasion was scarcely all to draw. We hear that Mr. Girard, Councilmen Walton and Alderman Ely will be among the speakers. The two latter gentlemen are reasonable as men of their class, and have the decorum although they belong to the Common Council. This will probably be the last public Reform demonstration of the campaign.

Reform Reformation.

At the call of the Executive Committee, the Reformers of the Twenty-second Ward assembled in the Hall in 28th-street. J. Crossley, Esq., was called to the chair, and James Farquhar, Esq., acted as secretary. The entire Republican Ticket, headed by Samuel Fleet, for Alderman, and J. H. Shannon, Councilman, was adopted.

☞ The Workingmen's Democratic Committee have made the following additional nominations:

Assembly—Thos. J. Barr and Wm. Allen.

Alderman—Fifth Ward—John J. Kelly. Seventh Ward—Robert Brown. (Tenth Ward.)

Alderman—Tenth Ward—David A. Miller.

Judges of the Court of Appeals—Samuel B. Selden for the long term, and Joseph Mullin for the short term.

The Committee also determined to insert the name of Lewis B. Woodruff in place of Michael Ulshoeffer on their Judiciary ticket.

☞ The National Club (K. N.'s) held a very enthusiastic meeting at National Hall, Canal-street, last evening. There were about two hundred of the whole persuasion, who listened to an address from the President, Mr. Sam. Piper; and speeches from the Ward Heelers, Knight and others, with considerable enthusiasm.

☞ The Pro-Slavery Whigs have hung their banner from Constitution Hall, so as to completely hide the small Whig Ward ticket there suspended. When remonstrated with, some of them declared that it must or removed, they would not prosecute the transgressor, but "out his head open with a club." The prospect of defeat makes men crusty.

☞ The German Democracy of the Fifth Ward held a mass meeting last night, at No. 68 Leonard-street, Mr. Schlesper presiding. There was much discussion concerning the Charter ticket, and a Committee was appointed to interrogate the different candidates, and report at the next meeting on Friday.

☞ The Staats Zeitung has an astonishing regard for truth, we always thought, but we did not suppose that it had so little confidence in the common sense of its readers as to think they would take for truth its assertion that all the Republican City and County candidates were K. N.'s.

☞ The Whig Judicial County Convention met at the Broadway House last evening, but adjourned to Thursday, without transacting any business.

☞ At a meeting of the Eighteenth Ward Republican Club, held at the Gramercy-park House, Oct. 30, it was resolved that "it is inexpedient for this Club to make nominations for Ward officers."

☞ The Republican Executive and Finance Committee meet this evening.

LONG ISLAND POLITICS.

Whig Ratification Meeting.

The Whigs of Kings County held a Mass meeting last evening in the Military Garden, Brooklyn, to ratify the Whig nominations. The usual auxiliaries to attract a crowd—music, bonfires, &c., were resorted to, and with partial success—and probably one thousand were present at any one time. A 7½ o'clock the meeting was organized by electing Hon. JOHN A. CROSS, Chairman, and the usual number of Vice-Presidents and Secretaries.

Hon. JAMES BROOKS was introduced to the meeting, and spoke at some length, and was followed by DARIUS P. FARNSWORTH, Esq., their remarks excited considerable enthusiasm.

A Committee appointed to draft resolutions, presented several which were unanimously adopted. The only one of interest read as follows:

Resolved, That in the absence of Whig nominations for State offices we believe it to be the duty of all National Whigs to cast their ballots for such of the candidates before the people for those offices as are known to be Whig Democrats of the Union.

A Day among Cordwainers.

New-Canaan is a happy land. It lies, not on the other side of Jordan, but on the other side of the New-Haven Railroad track, back eight miles into the woods. Modest, obscure, straggling, thrifty, hilly, clean, church-going and shoe-making in its characteristics, it is not half so well known as it ought to be. New-Canaan people are pleasant people. They live in neat little white cottages, hidden away beneath the shadow of the trees, silent, waxing their thread of life and pounding their last. Their average earnings suffice to support existence in comparative comfort. But they do not roll in carriages, nor send up speculative balloons, nor invest largely in Railroad stocks. On week-days they are not so presentable as on Sundays, and in this are not singular. But on Sunday they are very spruce. The New-Canaan young sparks are as lively and attentive as young sparks who live close to a railroad; the young ladies are blooming and industrious, and refrain from compressing their waists, like sensible young girls as they are; the matrons scold occasionally, as all matrons will do, yet keep cheerful households and mend their husbands' and children's hose, and repair damages when the children tumble down hill,—a performance that can hardly be avoided—the country is so very full of hills.

A marked peculiarity of this region is its stone fences. It is commonly understood that every field contains a sufficiency of fencing material for its own inclosure. The first impression that a stranger receives is, that a sudden irruption of an enemy has taken place, and that the inhabitants have begun, in their fright, to throw up temporary redoubts. Every Jack—says the proverb—must have his Gill; every fence, however stony and forbidding, must have its little wooden gate, hung between two staring posts that lean up affectionately against the neighboring boulders, which always form the substratum of a Connecticut fence.

If you pull the gate-latch, be sure you fasten it again, for it is a task of some difficulty. Once inside, you find that the house is open. The father of the family sits handy by the front window, piercing soles and uppers, running waxed ends out and in, and thumping heels. The children play around. The housewife gets ready a warm "slap-jack," with the accompaniment of the never-failing Connecticut "apple-sauce," and the pitcher of new cider, not yet fermented, is brought out to welcome the stranger.

In short, the Connecticut cordwainer leads a comfortable, and even a jolly life.

New-Canaan is second to Lynn in shoe-making. Its location in the midst of a rolling country renders it healthy, so much so that epidemics never rage there, and persons from the cities resort to the houses of their friends for safety. There are three churches—Congregational, Episcopalian, Methodist; a few stores, one large shoe-manufacturing establishment, the warehouse belonging to which is a well-known house in this City. Shoe-making is the staple of the place. It is quite absurd to inquire his employment of any man—the invariable answer is—"He is a shoemaker; there are nothing but shoemakers here." Saint Crispin should put up a Summer residence in the place, and divide the time between this and Lynn.

The earnings of a Connecticut Cordwainer will average perhaps seven dollars a week. If he is a swift, skillful workman, he may make up a weekly aggregate of $10, $12, or probably as high as $15, during some portions of the year; although this is far above the usual custom. If a shoemaker can call in $6 or $7 each week, the year round, he thinks that he is doing very well. Out of this sum, he has his family to support, house-rent to pay, and if a householder, a stern tax-collector to confront. As a matter of course, it is only the heads of the great manufacturing establishments who amass wealth. The journeyman gets nine shillings for each pair of first-quality pattern that he makes up; receives from five shillings to two dollars a pair, according to the quality and style of leather, for each pair of boots he varns out; and, if prudent in a money-making trade, he may, in the course of years, accumulate a few hundred dollars. There is in the village the extensive establishment, which employs between 400 and 500 operatives. Two mill-dams furnish the hydraulic power, which is in addition to the steam engine, which is capable of turning out 1,000 pairs of boots per day. The work is mainly done above the village, and in adjoining towns, at the houses of the workmen; it is cut out and prepared at the factory, and this part of the process occupies the time of twelve or fifteen men and several superintendents. The "hands" take out the work on their own responsibility, are paid for their labor upon returning the goods to the factory, and in case of damage are required to lose the bill. It is very seldom, however, that accidents occur. The pay is prompt, and no bad bills are given to bring trouble to the workmen. He has the privilege of retaining his "bench" of work until it is all made up, and his way, if he pleases, permits his account to run on at the store of the Company, to be taken up at such time as he needs it. It is not an uncommon circumstance for workmen living at a distance to call for accounts only three or four times a year. In the village, the pay is generally taken up as it is earned. The head of the largest establishment informed us that his weekly payments average $3,000, paid in dollars of $1 to $50. The highest price paid is $4 for dress-boots. These are invoiced to the New-York house at prime cost, $3, and are retailed at $7. A new style of German plush slippers is about to be introduced; it is quite elegant, but a considerable amount of goods has been made up from it, in anticipation of heavy sales. We believe this is the one novelty that New-Canaan can boast.

Three years ago a strike took place in the town. The journeymen formed a procession—on the hills, of course; they could not have formed it anywhere else—and marched with banners flying and music playing, with their kits strung over their shoulders, and hides flung aloft, in defiance to the capitalists, till they reached the factories. The targets were then surrounded and invaded, but offered no violence. The proprietors declined to accede to their demands, but went so far as to prepare a new schedule of prices, and it was found that the new rates, although often lower than those demanded by the strikers, were in other cases higher than they had asked; so that, in the end, the "Cordwainers' Protective Union" broke down, and the factory had its way—it still keeps it.

It is not unfrequently the case that an enterprising man goes to work by himself—on his own hook, as he says. He makes his own bargain with a New-York house or one in a Southern city, perhaps as far as New-Orleans, and ships his goods once a month. Such a man is apt to push his way. There are a few of them in New-Canaan.

The place is a capital one for a Summer retreat. A hotel is the great want—or would be a want, if visitors went there. A place of indescribable resort it cannot be, but a place for shoes it will probably continue, and so will continue to hold a steady hand upon the New-York market, in which its product finds ready consumers. If the reader will drop in at the New-Haven dépôt next Summer, cars will leave him at Stamford, and a stage will cleverly tramp him over the hills to the quiet regions that boast in their possession of the clever town of New-Canaan.

What Kansas Wants.

To the Editor of the New-York Daily Times:

In noticing the leading editorials of the entire Northern Press regarding the "Kansas outrages," and "border ruffians," as they are familiarly called, it seems quite strange to Southern and Western men that, with all the ability of the Northern Press, the real want of Kansas has not yet been defined and met.

It is well known to you all that Missourians, more particularly those residing in Kansas, turn a deaf ear to the thunder of a Northern Press. Its voice they will not heed, and its warnings they will not regard. The South are determined to aid Missouri in making Kansas a Slave State. They do not compact to do this with the gun alone, for their are ready to unsheath the sword and to commence the battle which shall decide the fate of Missouri, and, in time, of the South.

Missouri, as you are well aware, is bounded on the north by Iowa, on the east by Illinois, and on the west by Kansas. Slave property along the northern and eastern boundaries is almost valueless. It is an easy matter for the slave to escape. When he gets to Chicago he is safe. No Missourian loves to go there for his chattel. It requires no great foresight to determine the fact that if Kansas becomes a Free State, Missouri, in time, must follow in her footsteps. The question is not then confined to Kansas alone. It lifts itself high above all other questions, and takes foremost rank in the national mind. Kansas is the Thermopylæ of freedom, and what the wants is a Leonidas with his three hundred Spartan braves.

Your correspondent is a resident of the West. He lives in a Slave State, right down beside the "Big River." He has traveled in Kansas, knows SETHDREELLOW, has seen DAVE SETHDREELLOW on a bender, and has heard Col. DONIPHAN swear; and he knows something of the feeling with which Missourians regard the representatives of the North on the border. They think, and say, and believe, that they are all a set of cowards, who can run eloquent tributes to Freedom, but who dare do nothing in its defence.

T. STARR KING once said the best idea of weight was given by an Indianian who, when asked how much he weighed, replied, "As I am I weigh one hundred and fifty pounds, but when I am mad I weigh a ton." Now, if the North would do anything in Kansas, let them imitate the example of the South and send in a quiet and unostentatious way a few "ton" men to dare and do something for Freedom.

CASSIUS M. CLAY is the kind of a man for Kansas. He makes himself respected. He is eloquent in speech and bravest at heart. He dare back up what he says. When speaking, a few years since, he was fired at from the crowd. His little son, but twelve years of age, caught a bowie-knife from the belt of a bystander, ran to the platform and gave it to his father. CASSIUS took it and started for his antagonist. Reaching him, in his own quiet way he said, "Sir, I don't want to kill you, but I'll mark you." He cut the hand that held the pistol, then wounded one ear and then the other; and, after making the letter X across his face, he gave him to his friends. CASSIUS returned and finished his speech. Such a man knows his rights and knows how to defend them.

The South respects pluck. Whoever travels through Kentucky will hear a thousand stories commemorating the heroism of Mr. CLAY. Now, it is the opinion of the writer that Kansas wants a few CASSIUS M. CLAYS, who, when Mr. SETHDREELLOW, or anybody else, dare interrupt or insult them, are able, not only to assert their rights, but to defend them against any force that may be arranged against them.

Ex-Governor REEDER has won laurels in Kansas. He is spoken of in the highest terms, as a gentleman and as a brave man. Mr. SETHDREELLOW will not attack him again. His face has not yet been blacked, and no one has honored him with a ride on a rail. When PARSONS TWITCH came down to St. Louis a few days since—after having been treated with every indignity in Kansas, and tried to get sympathy in the North, by means of his pen—when it was known that he ran into the street, as he said, to get witnesses—but, as every one thought, to escape danger—he was pronounced a coward. But when the Editor of the Organ of Freedom offered to give her mobocrats a passage to glory, by blowing up his printing office, all said as one man—"He will do to tie to."

Now, there is too much capital made of Northern men going to Kansas. Their names are paraded in the newspapers; they are regarded as martyrs to Freedom before they have shown themselves worthy of respect or consideration. Many there, they pass through the press gives them a free passage, and, as a matter of course, before they get to Kansas, the entire South determines to give them a "hankerin" and, what in many the South does do. If a company of five hundred men could quietly go to Kansas prepared to defend themselves against all kinds of aggression—if they could select a leader, and take the advice, and when the crisis comes, as come it will, be prepared to meet it—and if the Northern Press would only hear the truth, and nothing but the truth, and would cease to be the tool of every politician, it is the opinion of the writer, and of thousands more, that Kansas

Inauguration of Governor Aiken, of Tennessee.

The inauguration of Hon. ANDREW JOHNSON as Governor of Tennessee took place on the 30th inst. Upon taking the oath of office, Governor JOHNSON delivered an address, in which he spoke thus of the Democratic party:

"Democracy knows, and it is to be remembered, too, that every place, office, and emolument, I have a tendency to improve and elevate the social, moral, and intellectual condition of the people, and to promote the public interest, prosperity, and happiness of those who contend for unlike advantages from the following men. It is important therefore, that the public interests should be committed to the hands of those who are in harmony with the principles and sympathies of the people, and hostility by the pseudo democracy of the country."

[illegible] Flour and 201,000 bushels of Wheat, [illegible] 22,000 bushels of Wheat; or, [illegible] Wheat, an increase of 184,000 bushels. The fresh and medium grades of Flour [illegible] about 37½c. ⅌ bbl., and the higher and second qualities 12½@25c. per bbl. Wheat of the different grades is from 5c. to 10c. ⅌ bushel higher, the greatest advance being on the finer qualities.

The increased sales and the slight advance in prices have arisen in part from an animated demand for export, in part by speculation, in part by the anticipation of reduced supplies by the closing of canal navigation, and in part by the necessities of those who have large previous contracts for November delivery. These contracts, some of which were made during the previous month, expired yesterday, and the last few days have been devoted to filling them.

The export demand is quite active, but most European orders are limited to so low a figure, that without further instructions, many of them cannot be filled. The confident expectation in Europe, that owing to our large yield, prices would go down here let these existing out orders, to limit them lower than they would have done, but for this expectation. Even with a hope of these limitations being placed at a higher mark on the reception of the next European mails, that speculators are purchasing increased stocks.

There has been some difficulty in obtaining adequate supplies of desirable brands of Flour and prime parcels of Grain. But for this a still heavier business would have been transacted.

The "bulls" in the Wheat market have recently attempted to create the impression that the Wheat crop of 1855 was in reality, an unusually short one. There is no real foundation for this. It is well known that the high prices of the previous year stimulated the sowing of an unusual breadth in the Autumn of 1854, except in a few limited localities, where the forests had been most destructive. In many of the newer, and in some of the Southern States, this increase amounted to a doubling of previous crops. The great number of new railroads extending into localities before heaped the mark of non-bearing markets, produced a like effect. Tennessee is a notable example of this. That State will probably send forward to market six or ten times as much Wheat the present as in any former year.

The wheat crop of New-England, though always small, has largely increased since the census of 1850, and we are pretty safe in saying, that while the old wheat-growing States have sustained their own natural increase, the newer States, and the so-called non-producing States, have largely increased their yields and consequent product. These causes alone would have given a large increase upon former years, even with but an average yield.

The true explanation of the apparently limited supply of Wheat is probably to be found in the fact that most farmers sold out their crop early last season, after which a considerable rise occurred, and they learned of a similar state of things the present season. Their present prosperous condition induces them to be their own speculators, so to speak, and they will not send their Grain to market so long as there is the shadow of a hope that there will be any increase above the present rates. We notice these journals are doing the producers of Wheat a positive injury, by holding out any inducements which will lead to a continued hoarding of the Grain and Flour of the country. It will, of necessity, be sent at some time, and if kept back till the whole crop comes forward, the market will be overstocked, and a great loss will be experienced.

The sales of Corn during the past six days amount to 800,000 bushels, with a slight advance, say 1c. to 1½c. ⅌ bushel. The market closes sluggishly. The new crop has appeared in small quantities, but it will mostly be too late for Canal navigation. Whatever doubts may arise as to the greater or less yield of Wheat, we believe all are agreed that the Corn crop is unprecedentedly large.

Rye, Barley, Oats and other small grains are essentially unchanged.

Apples are arriving in immense quantities, but remunerative prices are still maintained, and the shipping demand is somewhat active. Those who chance to have a supply of Newtown Pippins can now dispose of them to advantage. The prices of the various kinds of Apples are given in our wholesale Produce Market reports.

Potatoes are in good supply, at about previous quotations. A large crop, comparatively uninjured by the "rot," is now a matter of certainty.

The Cotton market, recently greatly depressed, has since slightly revived, with free sales.

Our Market Reports will furnish further information in the various departments.

NEW-YORK LIVE-STOCK MARKET.

Prepared expressly for the New-York Times by a careful and experienced Reporter.

WEDNESDAY EVENING, Oct. 31, 1855.

BEEF CATTLE.

These are chiefly sold at the WASHINGTON GROVE YARDS, 45TH-STREET, and at the NEW-YORK YARDS, Fourth-fourth-street; BROWNING'S, on Sixth-street; CHAMBERLAIN'S, on Robinson-street, and O'BRIEN'S on Sixth-street. Our reports refer to these sales, as well as to those made at Bergen Hill, N. J., and from the Hudson River boats.

The great sales day at the Washington Yards is on WEDNESDAY of each week. The report from all the yards are made up for the preceding week to the evening of that day.

Beeves are sold by the estimated dead weight of the four quarters; the so-called "fifth quarter" (hide and tallow) is not reckoned in here, as it is in Boston and some other cities. When Cattle are weighed alive the dead weight is reckoned at 56 lbs. on each 100 lbs. of live weight; 44 lbs. being allowed for the "fifth quarter" and offal.

The supply of Cattle received at the regular yards for the week ending to-day is 5,808, against 4,468 the preceding week, being an increase of 1,142 at the regular yards.

The prices average to-day, as compared with last week, about ½c. lower.

AT FORTY-FOURTH-STREET WE QUOTE:

First quality, 9½c.@10c.; extras, 10¼c.@10½c.

Middling quality, 8½c.@9¼c.

Poor quality, 7½c.@8c.

Fourth quality, a few, at 6½c.@7c.

General selling prices, 6½c.@9½c.

Average of sales about 9¼c.

Good Beeves, in the earlier part of the day, sold nearly as well as last week, but there were fewer of them. The average sales before 12 o'clock were higher than those given above, but our quotations include the dull, low prices of the latter part of the day.

BROWNING reports Beeves 7c.@9c., extras 10c. Market well supplied.

CHAMBERLAIN reports Beeves 8c.@10c. Market not changed from last week.

O'BRIEN reports Beeves 7½c.@9½c.

GENERAL REMARKS UPON THE BEEF MARKETS.

Most of the other days of this season, so far as weather is concerned, though anything but fine for drivers of cattle, who had to submit to the decline [illegible]

No. 6—Steer Cattle selling for fattening at 7½@8½c.

No. 7—Also Steer Cattle weighing about 725 lbs., and selling at $60@$70 ⅌ head.

No. 8—(part 10 11) A part of same lot as 9 and 12. Common quality; selling at 5c.@6c.

No. 10—A mixed lot, 400 to 900 lbs.; finest quality, selling at 8c.@9c.

MILCH COWS AND CALVES.

These are sold at each of the above yards. The prices of Cows vary according to the fancy of the buyer, rather than with the real selling value. A nice animal, with a calf by her side, will bring from $65 to $80 or more. The prices the past week have been: Ordinary, $20@$40; Good, $40@$50; Extras, $60@$70.

Also, 130 Cattle sold at 7c.@9c. ⅌ lb.

HORSE MARKET.

Horses are sold all over the City, but the principal sales and exchange stables are located on Twenty-fourth-street, between Second and Fourth avenues. At these stables horses are sold on commission, or are purchased by the stable-keepers and sold on their own account. Generally, however, they are sold by drovers who bring their horses here from the country, and stable them, at an expense of 65 cents per day, until sold. The sales below are not a tithe of all sold in the City; but, being leading sales stables, they are quoted as a general indication of the market.

The markets for Horses are not over and above brisk. There appears to be less demand than usual at this season, though some dealers are in good spirits.

DANIEL MCCARTHY, Rose Hill stables, Nos. 98 to 110 Twenty-fourth-street, has on hand 65 Horses, with sales for the week of 17.

At CHAMBERLIN & CO.'S, No. 71 Twenty-fourth-street, 77 on hand, and sales during the week 40. Market very good—sales brisk.

NELSON POST, National Stables, No. 89 Twenty-fourth-street, reports 90 on hand; sales and exchanges during the week, 20.

BROWN & SMITH, No. 120 Twenty-fourth-street, reports 40 on hand, and sales and exchanges during the week, 10.

SWINE.

These are sold at so much ⅌ lb., gross or live weight. Sold from scales. Principal sales at ALLERTON'S, Forty-fourth-street; and at JAMES DORMAN'S Union Drove Yards, foot of Forty-first-street.

Receipts at ALLERTON'S by Erie Railroad, 930; by Hudson River Railroad, 180; by Hudson River boats, 863; by Harlem Railroad, 0; total, 1,973.

ALLERTON reports good Swine, 7c.@7¼c.

At BROWNING'S on Saturday, SAMUEL MCGRAW sold to KINTAN & CO., No. 216 Bowery, 14 Suffolk pigs, 6 months old, weighing 200 lbs. each. They belonged to ISRAEL BOYCE, in the town of Homer, Courtland Co., N. Y., and drew the first premium at the County Agricultural Exhibition. To show the value of such imported stock, we will state that these shoats sold for over $20 each.

MR. CULBERTSON of Newport, Ind., sold 564 hogs (weighing at home 210 lbs., live weight,) to FITZSIMONS for 9¼c. net, which is equal to about 7½c. after allowing for shrinkage of two weeks travel.

Weekly Review of the Dry Goods Trade.

NEW-YORK, Wednesday, Oct. 31, 1855.

The Dry Goods Trade displays increasing inactivity and languor. Purchasers are reluctant to venture beyond their most urgent requirements in making fresh selections,—while holders are gradually losing confidence in the future, and are becoming more eager to get rid of what they have on hand, even at the risk of depressing prices. These circumstances sensibly affect business—a fact evidenced by the comparative ease with which supplies of all other than the very rarest productions can be obtained at, in some instances, lower rates. Yet, this change—so favorable to buyers, is insufficient to sustain anything like a lively inquiry.

Brown Sheetings and Shirtings are less active, and though unchanged in price, they lean in favor of purchasers. A limited demand exists for bleached goods at heavy rates. Desirable styles of Cotton flannels are still rather scarce and wanted. Denims are plenties, but are in slack request and languid in price. Drills are sparingly bought at about former figures. Duck is attracting a little more attention at previous quotations. Ginghams are quiet, but otherwise as before reported. Lawns are also inactive and somewhat nominal. Nankins are dull and heavy. Osnaburgs, of favorite makes, are not freely offered, while they are in fair demand at full rates. Printing Cloths are not very active, but are stiffly held. Prints are selling slowly, and irregularly. Stripes and Ticks remain quiet and depressed.

Woolens are rather brighter, but the business is by no means vigorous or encouraging; the supplies on hand, though moderate, are in excess of the wants of purchasers, and as factors are desirous to dispose of them, they are generally unsettled and languid. Blankets are among the most active and the firmest. Cassimeres are tolerably freely dealt in, but at heavy prices. Cloths seem in fair demand, though otherwise devoid of vigor. Doeskins are selling moderately, but steadily. Flannels are in request, and are held with considerable firmness. Jeans and Linseys are quiet and depressed. Mouslin de laines attract less attention, but are otherwise unaltered. Satinets are in better demand, though not dearer. Shawls display no new feature of interest. Tweeds are inactive and languid.

Foreign fabrics are generally in very slack request, and being more freely offered, the heaviness and irregularity in prices—to which we previously alluded—[illegible]

The Late Whig Party.

We copy in another column an article from the Washington Sentinel, a Southern paper, supported by the contingent fund of the United States Senate, which appears to us to define, with remarkable correctness, the position of the Northern and Southern divisions of the late Whig Party. We give it the benefit of our circulation for the information of those members of the extinct organization at the North, who are attempting to reconstitute it on a basis which shall make it an effective ally of the Southern section for the propagation of Slavery over this Continent, and for the infringement of the constitutional rights of the non-slave-holding States.

The Sentinel says, truly, that this Northern movement for the revival of the Whig Party receives no response from the South. It is looked upon in that quarter with indifference, for two reasons; of which the first is that Southern politicians believe their real strength lies in standing by the Democratic Party, and the second that no reunion of Northern and Southern Whigs could be permanent or effective for any important national purpose;—in other words, that it is not possible to construct a National Whig Party.

It is equally true, as the Sentinel in substance asserts, that Southern Whigs never were National Whigs. It was the unsoundness of their Northern brethren on the Slavery question—the question, that is, of the extension of Slavery over Free Territories, and, in a qualified form, into the Free States—"which forced them (the Southern Whigs) to withdraw from the organization." Here is an explicit averment that the Whig Party was broken up by Southern Whigs, who withdrew from it because they could not compel a uniformity of opinion and action on Slavery. How perfectly just, then, is the comment upon this fact; "thus split and divided into a Northern and Southern Party, of course the Whig Party could not stand." This simple statement from high Southern authority shows how much Mr. BARNBURN, Mr. CROARS and Gov. HUNT were mistaken when they gave, as a reason against fusing with the Republicans, that the old Whig Party had always tolerated differences of opinion on Slavery. Independence of sentiment and political action never was tolerated when submission to Southern dictation was essential to Southern purposes.

Nor would it be as all difficult to show that not even Northern submission has commonly sufficed to purchase Southern toleration. To go no further back than 1850, it was not enough that the North should submit to the Fugitive act and the other Southern measures of that year, but the whole of the next session of Congress was spent in forcing through resolutions of approval, as matters of opinion, and we recollect that a distinguished Whig member from this City degraded himself so far as to sign a secret pledge with certain Southern Whig conspirators to the effect that they would unite in prescribing every man who should reject that test of opinion. In 1852 the Northern and Southern Whig parties met in Convention at Baltimore. The Southern Party forced through, after a desperate struggle, a thorough Pro-Slavery platform, when the North desired no mention whatever of Slavery, and then deliberately repudiated the candidate nominated upon that platform. These are samples of the toleration exercised by what is now, after it is dead, called a National Whig Party.

Even when Northern Whigs practically submitted to and nominally acquiesced in a policy dictated by Slavery, there was no living and energetic Whig Party at the South. It is true that the South sent a few Whigs to the Senate and House, but the mere fact of their union with representatives of the North professing Northern sentiments paralyzed them at home. Mr. CLAY was the solitary exception to this class of public men. This was, we believe, no fault peculiar to Southern statesmen and politicians. They were slaves to the despotism of a prejudice so fiercely violent that it was not in any ordinary strength of character to resist. It is a truth which we are compelled to recognize that the people of the South are intensely sectional; that they hate the sentiments, institutions and customs of the North, so far as they differ from their own, with a ferocity which cannot be resisted nor conciliated. And this is probably the true secret of those constant appeals to the disunion sentiment of the South from Northern politicians of the school of CASS, HOUSTON, PRESCOTT, DOUGLAS and BARNARD, men who, feeling that the South will never submit to the emancipation of the National Government from Slavery, suppose that, of course, the North will submit to the perpetual domination of this institution.

According to the Washington Sentinel, the effort of the Northern Whigs to coalesce again with those of the South for the preservation of a National party must be abortive, because the former have not "recanted their assumed opinions on the Slavery question." The case might have been even more strongly stated—the Northern Whigs have not only not recanted, but they have maintained those opinions, and their constituents generally the South that probably [illegible] to predict as it is now. The [illegible] is not removed; the barrier is higher and broader than ever. The true issue with these Northern politicians now is exactly [illegible] the question of nationalism is settled, whether they will go back, but whether the South will permit them to come back into a Whig organization. The question is for the South to decide, not for them;—and as "their new platforms resemble their old platforms," or rather incline more Northwardly, the question has been already decided in the negative.

To what purpose, then, this Whig rebellion against regular party authority? The South repels the seceders in advance. The Democracy is indeed willing to receive the revolters, but only as mercenaries and auxiliaries. They have, in the words of the old song:

"Plenty of officers, and all they want is men."

Do our Northern Whigs with Southern sentiments wish to figure as the tail end of a company of ragged Loco-foco recruits? If they do, that ambition may be gratified, but no higher aspiration. What honorable ambition can be gratified by the whimsical, factional isolation which is presented as this moment to the Whigs of New-York and Massachusetts, as the highest object of their exertions? A National Whig Party, unless proposed by the South, is, as we have attempted to show, a delusion. A National Northern Party is a possibility, and so confident are we of the native justice, moderation, and generosity of our Northern people, that we cannot believe that our Southern brethren will refuse their coöperation with this party long after it shall have obtained the strength and consistency which naturally follow success.

Bounty Land, and the Warrants.

Under the act of March 4, 1855, some two hundred and twenty thousand applications have been made for parcels of the public land. Many of this host of applicants had received gratuities under the old act, and return now to increase their allotment. Others, who had rated the amount assigned them under that act as too paltry to claim, and others, again, to whom that act gave nothing, now appear for the first time, demanding the entire donation of 160 acres. To examine, and decide, and satisfy these claims is the business of the Pension Office, and to the mode and the speed with which the business is conducted it is high time public attention should be directed. The act has now been in force eight months, lacking a fraction, and some forty thousand alone of the warrants have made their way out of the Bureau—a little more than a thousand a week. With proper diligence, the whole number should have been in the hands of their owners; and yet, at the present rate of issue, two years must still elapse before the last of the batch sees the light.

Of this tardiness the injurious effects do not exhibit themselves at once. The Land Warrant is a subject of speculation. Its market value largely depends upon the territory open for its location, the opportunity of securing available sites, and the movement of emigration. At the moment the act was passed all these conditions were in a most favorable attitude for the old soldier. Every day, however, deteriorates them; the lands near the Mississippi are rapidly filling up; before next midsummer every desirable spot will have been laid hold of by the capitalist, or squatter, or bona fide settler; and the donation of the Government to the really deserving old servant will reach him too late to afford the intended benefit.

Such has been the demand for the warrants during the present Summer, that had the whole number issuable entered the market, it is reasonable to believe the price would have kept as near the par value of Government land as it has so far remained. There are few of those dealing in the article who believe that the warrant now selling for $1 12½ an acre, will command $1 next year. The first receivers have, of course, had the choice of the national domain. Had the whole number appeared at once, all the recipients would have been on a level, and all the public land which has this year brought a needless revenue of millions into the National Treasury, would have been paid for in warrants, because warrants could have been bought. The detention at the Pension Bureau has, no doubt, benefited a handfull of Washington speculators, but has been a serious injury to the beneficiaries of the Bounty act. The man who obtains his warrant in 1856 or 1857 will find all that tract between the Missouri River and the Lakes, with the exception, perhaps, of less desirable, because unimprovable points, occupied before him. The old soldier, too, has no personal hold upon immortality, however green his laurels; and a whole generation of such may perish before the reward reaches them. Two years tell a fearful story among old men, and the health-broken volunteers of Indian and Mexican campaigns. They should at least have, as they waste away, what satisfaction the Bounty act designed for them, either in the form of the immediate money, or the hope of a future home in the West for the families for whom poverty may leave them no other provision to make. Every year likewise brings the enactment of a Homestead bill nearer. It is not improbable that the present Congress may resume that measure from among the other unfinished business of its predecessors, and make it a law. Certainly, so settled is the general conviction in favor of freedom of the public lands, that nothing but respect to the defrauded soldiers and sailors of the Bounty act, can defer the adoption of the principle in practice; and that a step so reasonably demanded by the whole people will be postponed for the sake of a few, however just their claims, is a degree of indulgence there is no title to expect.

If then, the pretended liberality of the late act is not to be mere sham, and a source of keen disappointment to the alleged beneficiaries, there should be at once a vast increase of the clerical force employed about the warrants. For a thousand per week there is no reason why twice that number per day should not issue. As we have already remarked, a vast number, perhaps, a majority of the present applications, are for balances to complete the total quarter-section, of which some portion had been obtained under the former act. Of course, these claims, having been once examined and sanctioned, dispense with the necessity of a fresh investigation ab ovo; and there can be no excuse for not meeting this class of applications, at least, as rapidly as blanks can be filled. And, with proper organization, applications that have, attained by records in the office, might be dispatched with vastly greater speed. Nothing forbidding improvement in this particular save the spirit of routine, which common men—and the actual Commissioner is not an uncommon man—submits to slavishly. Will not something be done to whip up this lazy Bureau? If the President will not interfere, cannot a Congressional Committee reach the mischief, and insist on the employment of a sufficient number of clerks to carry out the law before the unfortunate expectants under it are all defunct?

The Matsell Case.

A "Native-born American," who thinks that the Press have not treated the Briggs Investigating Committee with the gravity which the importance of its object demands, is very desirous that we should "state in a serious tone why we ridicule the investigation now progressing respecting the birth-place of G. W. MATSELL;" but we are not aware of ever having treated the affair in any other manner than seriously; the only ridicule which the investigation has ever provoked, has been caused by the Chairman of the Committee, the redoubtable Alderman himself, and the narratives and exploits of his secretary. It is a public scandal that any part of the business of the City Government should have been conducted with such an entire absence of decorum, and in so undignified a manner, as to make a really serious investigation appear like a burlesque on legislation. But, in spite of all the absurdities which have been perpetrated before the Briggs Investigating Committee, they have succeeded in placing the Chief of Police in a position from which he cannot extricate himself without offering some conclusive evidence that he is not what Alderman BRIGGS has been laboring to prove him—an alien. If he has not been compelled to do this, it is not the fault of the public, but of the Chairman of the Committee himself. As we have said once or twice before, the affair has ceased to be a joke, and we are not disposed to treat such serious foleries with levity. It is quite time that every candidate for office, as well as every man in office, should be required to purge himself of every imputation upon his character, before a public trust is confided to his hands; and, when a public officer refuses, or neglects to disprove a charge against his integrity, it should be considered as sufficient evidence of his guilt.

The Deaf and Dumb Institution.

We mentioned, in yesterday's paper, a rumor which was current in the City, of a defalcation at a Public Institution. In making the notice, we refrained from naming the establishment, but a paragraph in the Evening Post, of last evening, expressly declares that the Institution for the Deaf and Dumb was the place intended to be indicated, and takes upon itself, on the authority of two Directors, to deny the truth of the report. The name having been thus published, it is proper for us to say that the rumor did refer to that Institution; and it is in place to add that further inquiries have convinced us that very serious misapprehensions existed in the mind of our informant. The report of troubles at the Institution originated in the fact that work upon the new building of the Deaf and Dumb Institution, on the upper end of the Island, was suspended for a time. The Board of Directors found that the system of construction by day's work was disadvantageous to the interests of the Institution, and the plan was accordingly changed to a contract system. In the interval, no work was done; and hence, we presume, the rumor of a final stoppage. The Superintendent of the new edifice, Mr. EDMUND B. PRYE, is absolved from any imputation upon his character. The Directors, we understand, have adopted measures for prosecuting their enterprise at Fanwood. Stories have been in circulation at Carmansville to the effect that the Superintendent (not the President, who is altogether a different officer) has disposed of several cart-loads of the granite intended for building purposes; and it is well to say here that this report is circulated for the purpose of injuring the Institution. The Superintendents own the quarry in Maine from which the stone is procured, furnishes it at cost price, and has only disposed of such portions of the material as were not needed in the construction of the new building. The statement which we have already published would have had no more special application to this institution than to many others, had it not been made the subject of comment. As it is, we can readily see that there was sufficient foundation upon which to ground the report of troubles, which we are glad to believe were exaggerated.

The City's Meat Bill.

The consumers of beef and mutton will be interested in the reports of the Live-stock Markets, given in another column. These show the receipt, during the past week, of six thousand one hundred and fifty-four cattle, which, at an average net weight of 600 lbs., gives THREE MILLIONS SIX HUNDRED AND SIXTY-TWO THOUSAND FOUR HUNDRED pounds of beef. The reported decline of one-half cent per lb. is equivalent to a saving of more than Eighteen Thousand Dollars.

Extending this comparison a little further, and allowing an average of only 5,000 beeves a week for all sold in the City, a difference of only one cent per pound will amount to more than one and a half million of dollars annually.

The receipts of sheep and lambs have also been enormous during the last six days. At three markets they amount to 16,246.

The reports from all parts of the country indicate that there will be no deficiency of either beef or mutton for many months to come, so that, although flour still remains about as high as ever, we shall at least have cheap meat in abundance. Let us be thankful for this favor—at least such of us as are not Grahamites. Those who are will not lack for apples and potatoes, and we can well afford to let our starving European neighbors have a large share of our surplus wheat—the balance of the grain bags the speculators of White Hall may keep in hand as probable for their Winter supplies.

From New Mexico.

We publish elsewhere a budget of Santa Fé news. Governor MERIWETHER had arrived at Independence, en route for St. Louis. We learn from a correspondent, that on the 13th of September the Governor held a Council with the hostile Indians at Santa Fé. The Chiefs of the Jiccarilla and Huhnatche tribes were present, and made peaceful proposals. They promised to keep their people in subjection for the future, and a treaty was, on this condition, concluded with them. It will be seen that the election of GALLEGOS as delegate to Congress is to be contested on the ground of illegality.

FROM WASHINGTON.

Justice done at last—Our Correspondent's Statement in relation to the Pay of Gen. Scott Verified—Position of the Attorney General—The Purchase of Belligerent Ships—Liability of Government for its Agents—Postal Evasions, &c.

Special Correspondence of the N. Y. Daily Times.

WASHINGTON, Tuesday, Oct. 30, 1855.

The whole country will rejoice to-morrow morning over the news that General SCOTT has been allowed his back pay as Lieutenant General from the date of his commission, the glorious day upon which he successfully assaulted the City of Vera Cruz and the Castle of San Juan d'Ulloa. That this justice was to be rendered the old hero, your readers were informed nearly a month ago; but the persistent denial of my statement to that effect, made by several of your cotemporaries, had the effect of creating a feeling of uncertainty quite as painful to the public mind as to him whose claim was held in suspense.

THE ATTORNEY GENERAL ON SCOTT'S PAY.

It is but just to Attorney-General CUSHING, to call attention at this time to the fact that his opinion was rendered in this case two months ago, and sustained the claim of the General for increased pay, while the press has teemed with most positive statements that his opinion was of a directly opposite character, and has abused him roundly and incessantly upon this false premise. Official propriety of course forbade any unofficial statement on his part, notwithstanding the charges against him were so easy of rebuttal. During several weeks past, the case has been detained in the Paymaster General's office, where quite a number of minor questions had to be investigated and disposed of. Hence the delay.

FRANCE ON THE PURCHASE OF BELLIGERENT SHIPS.

Parties disposed to purchase Russian merchant ships which may be war stayed in American ports, need have no apprehension of loss in consequence of the French Consul's fulmination at Boston. France is the only maritime power which clings to the false idea that ships of an enemy's construction, or which have been of enemy's ownership, are not to be regarded as neutrals unless transferred to subjects of neutral powers prior to the commencement of hostilities. She will receive no support in this doctrine from any nation of Europe,—and if she attempts to give it practical illustration so far as regards ships transferred in good faith to American purchasers, she will certainly meet decisive resistance at our hands.

A CASE IN POINT.

This very question was decided quite recently in the British High Court of Admiralty, in the case of Johanna Emilia, reported in LITTLE & BROWN'S English Law and Equity Reports, vol. 29, page 562. The vessel above named was captured as Russian, but claimed as the property of a Hamburger, by purchase, since the commencement of hostilities. Judge LUSHINGTON, in giving the opinion of the Court, says:

"With regard to the legality of the sale, assuming it to be bona fide, it is not denied that it is competent to neutrals to purchase the property of enemies in another country, whether consisting of ships or anything else. They have a perfect right to do so, and no belligerent can override it."

LIABILITY OF GOVERNMENT FOR ITS AGENTS.

The opinion delivered by Judge SCARBOROUGH, of the Court of Claims, in the case of Capt. ISAAC SWAIN, has much interest for a large class of claimants against the Government, because it settles affirmatively the question whether Government is responsible for damages accruing to a citizen because of the error of a Government agent. The claimant in this case had a cargo of perishable stores for the use of the Army, which were detained by the Collector at Benicia, Cal., for duties—the Army Officer who was to receive them justly claiming that they were exempt. Pending the controversy between these two officers, the stores were spoiled. The Court rules that the case is a good one against the Government, if the facts are made out, and so orders testimony in the case to be taken.

CIRCULARS—POSTAL EVASIONS.

The Postmaster-General has decided that printed sheets in newspaper form, but consisting, in part, of a collection of business circulars, must pay the postage charged by law, upon unsealed circulars, for each circular contained therein. This, of course, amounts to a prohibition of that sort of publication, and very properly. The postage law discriminates between circulars and newspapers, in favor of the latter, upon the correct idea that Government ought foster the spread of intelligence throughout the country, and that men whose private interest is to be benefited by the Circular system of advertising through the mails, ought pay a reasonable price for the accommodation thus afforded them. It is not the weight of matter charged in either case, but its character. The sending of half a dozen or more circulars in one street, is simply an attempt to evade the purpose of the law, and ought be met precisely as is now proposed by the Department.

Rights of Literary Ladies.

Whatever question there may be as to the abstract rights of woman, there can be none whatever, we presume, that they have no right to commit literary larcenies upon each other. In the notice which we published yesterday, of Graham's Magazine, our extract was given of a sonnet to the Greek Slave, from an article contributed by Mrs. LEWIS, of Brooklyn. But we are informed by competent authority that the sonnet was written by Mrs. E. CABEL SMITH, and was published by her some years ago, when POWERS' famous statue was first exhibited in this City. It requires no Solomon to pronounce a judgment in the case of this literary bantling, and, we presume, that Mrs. LEWIS will admit the mistake.

Interesting Political Statistics.

From an aggregate of the figures furnished to the NEW-YORK DAILY, SEMI-WEEKLY, and WEEKLY TIMES, at a very late hour last evening, by a vigilant and careful corps of reporters, the startling fact appears, that up to the moment the reporters ceased from their arduous labors, there were eight thousand seven hundred and thirty-six aspirants for small City offices in a state of feverish excitement, and nine hundred and eighty-one looking unpleasantly blue. Let it be understood that the figures we give do not include any of those who have received nominations from Conventions. They are all excited, and all cock-sure of winning. They are confined exclusively to that class of candidates who do not aspire to any office of sufficient importance, under the present system, to call for a gathering of delegates. The figures give simply the number and condition of those who work for the election of others who have received conventional nominations, with the hope of coming in for the pickings, if their favorites are successful. We have incurred the expense in this matter—which is inevitable whenever exclusive news is desirable—not because the offices these men seek to fill are the most important to the City, but because the men, per se, are among the most interesting specimens of our miscellaneous population. On the eve of an election they are decidedly the most sociable set of vagabonds you could wish to meet. The most trustworthy and influential of them always have from three to ten dollars of somebody else's money in their pockets, and there is no mouth so swollen that they will not invite it to sip with them; no eyes so carbuncled that they refuse it free ingress to their sanctum; no paw too soiled or horny for them to grasp with friendly squeeze. Nor may cent to scanty too from at the same bar with them, if it has an unpledged vote in it. If well dressed themselves, and at such times they generally are, they lavishly shower great promises upon the needy paupers; and, without making the usual promises, they convince, through the complacent, dollars well invested here, money judicious and loaned, for to the most satisfactory evidence of high-toned morality in their owners. And so they know there is not a fast-cute fellow, they never fail to generously recommend them to take a little something hot and a cheroot cigar. Consequently our satisfied assurance that Chest-in-Cent-ner, the candidate for Alderman in his Ward, is a real genuine out and out poor man's friend, and "goes dead agin them sweeping machines," is given, and followed by a remark, that if the laboring men of the Ward only knew their true interests they would go en masse for Chest-in-Cent-ner. They are earnest and cheerful so long as their candidate's money holds out, but if he fails to "pony up," as they call it, they become sad and express a conviction that "politics is a bad business, which hadn't ought to be followed by no man who can do better." There were, according to our figures, 281 of these disappointed peacocks in the City, and yet there was a vastly greater number who were still rejoicing in their ability to "treat all round." If they continue so until Tuesday the election in this City, at least, will be carried by a huge majority.

Notice to the Inspectors of Elections.

According to the law which was passed last Winter by the Legislature of this State, the following is the order in which the votes are to be canvassed this Fall:

First—The State officers, except Judiciary.
Second—State Senators.
Third—Members of Assembly.
Fourth—County and City Officers.
Fifth—Town and Ward officers.
Sixth—State and County Judicial officers.
Seventh—Police and Civil Justices.

The last box is probably unnecessary beyond the City of New-York. In the coming election, only five boxes will be used out of the City. They are the following, and must be canvassed in the order indicated by the figures:

1. State officers. 2. State Senators.
3. Members of Assembly. 4. County officers.
5. State and County Judicial officers.

As soon as the count of a box is made, the Chairman of the Inspectors must publicly announce the number of ballots found in the box, the name of the office, and the number cast for each person. Any departure from these rules is a violation of the general election law, and punishable as a misdemeanor.

Putnam County Politics.

The regular Democrats of Putnam County, in Convention on the 30th inst., nominated Hon. BENJAMIN EAILY for Assembly, IRA MEAD for Clerk, A. B. CRANE for Judge, and T. BENYOUT for Sheriff.

Columbia College—The Alumni at a Feast.

It will be pleasant tidings to the Alumni of Columbia College to know that eighty of their brethren had a comfortable season last night. Professor HENRY JAMES ANDERSON delivered the Annual Oration; Mr. S. WEIR ROOSEVELT the Poem; and the Banquet followed at the Saloon of PELTZ. Speeches were made by President KING, Ex-President DUER, and a host of others, who said wise and witty things, and made people pleasant about the tables. The festival continued to a late hour, and, as a consequence, our report is crowded over.

The Goat Story Proves a Roorback.

To the Editor of the New-York Daily Times:

The Washington-square goat story is not true. No better officer is to be found than he who is stationed at Washington-square. He is always on the spot when his duty requires him to be, and is entitled to the praise rather than the censure of so respectable a daily as the TIMES. S. D.

☞ Hosts of letters we get too late for use, simply because correspondents will direct personally their favors, instead of to the DAILY TIMES. The DAILY TIMES is always on hand—always awake. Pretty nearly every person on it, however, is supposed to sleep an hour or two daily, and to walk out and see the town at intervals. Address NEW-YORK DAILY TIMES—unless it is an offer of marriage, a proposition to fork over a thousand or two as a reward of merit, or something to that effect.

☞ We hear that EDWARD J. PHELPS, Esq., a distinguished member of the New-York Bar, son of the late Senator PHELPS and Second Comptroller of the Treasury under DANIEL WEBSTER, has removed to this City. He is to be associated with Alderman WAKEMAN and Mr. LATTING in a law firm.

☞ A rally of the Republicans of Boston was held on Tuesday evening in Faneuil Hall. The Hall was crowded in every part, and the proceedings were of the most animated nature.

BUSINESS NOTICES.

ANOTHER VERDICT IN FAVOR OF HERRING'S PATENT CHAMPION SAFE.

The last dispute relating to ownership of Safes, tested by fire, occurred at the destruction of Messrs. Hecker & Brother's Flour Mills, at Brooklyn, N. Y., on the morning of the 11th inst.

The following is the summing up of the testimony in this case, (a part of which has been given to the public through the Press,) viz: In September, 1854, Messrs. Hecker & Brothers bought of S. C. Herring a safe, (weight about 2,700 pounds,) for their flour mills in Brooklyn, which was made and filled in accordance with the patent, known by the name of "Herring's Patent Champion Safe." On the 11th inst. the evening papers announced that the large and extensive flour mills of Messrs. Hecker & Brothers, in Brooklyn, known as the Island Mills, had been destroyed by fire. At about 6 o'clock the same evening the subscribers dispatched a young man in their employ to ascertain if their safe had been exposed to the fire, who, on his return, reported that the safe had been exposed to a very severe heat, but had been taken out of the burning ruins, and, upon being opened, the books, papers, &c., were found uninjured, as may be seen by the following certificate:

Messrs. S. C. HERRING & Co. NEW-YORK, Oct. 13, 1855.

GENTLEMEN: We take pleasure in stating that the Herring's Patent Safe, which we purchased from you about a year since, has been the means of preserving our books, papers, &c., from fire, at the destruction of our flour mill in Brooklyn, early on the morning of the 11th inst. The safe was exposed to a severe heat about eight hours, and when cooled off and opened, the contents were found to be totally uninjured. We cheerfully recommend your safe to public confidence. HECKER & BROTHER.

On the morning of the 18th inst., the following Card appeared in the newspapers:

NEW-YORK, Oct. 18, 1855.—I hereby certify, that on the afternoon of the 16th inst., I called at the place where the recent fire took place in Brooklyn, for the purpose of ascertaining the mark on the Safe that saved the books and papers of Messrs. Hecker & Brother. I there met a person in charge, who gave me his name as Keaney, to whom I made known my business. He replied distinctly and clearly, twice, that the plate on the Safe was marked "Wilder's Patent." A. J. HARRINGTON.

Sworn to before me, this 16th day of Oct., 1855.
N. C. EVERETT, Commissioner of Deeds.

It was of little consequence to the subscribers, whether Mr. Harrington (a partner of B. G. Wilder & Co.) was told what he stated in his affidavit, or not, knowing as we did, that it was not the fact; but it was of importance as contradicting the statement of the certificate Messrs. Hecker & Brother, too politely furnished us; and also of importance to Mr. Keaney, therein named, who, on reading Mr. Harrington's affidavit, addressed us the following Card for publication:

NEW-YORK, Oct. 17, 1855.

The undersigned is the person referred to in Messrs. B. G. WILDER & CO.'S advertisement of this morning, as Messrs. Hecker & Brothers' clerk; and would say that one of the firm of B. G. Wilder & Co. mentioned me in relation to the safe therein mentioned, but I never said or told him the safe was Wilder's Patent, or that any of Herring & Co.'s employes, or any other person, ever broke off any plates, (the safe was Herring's Patent,) and all the statements in said B. G. Wilder & Co.'s advertisement, as far as relates to their conversation with me, respecting said safe, are destitute of truth.
E. T. KEANEY,
Superintendent Island Mills, Brooklyn.

In addition to the foregoing unmistakable evidence of the identity of the safe in dispute, the same safe (which has been taken of Messrs. Hecker & Brother, in part payment for a much larger one (can be seen in front of the subscribers' store, with the name in cast iron letters as originally made, thus: "Herring Pt." "Safe." "N. Y.," which the public are invited to call and examine, and judge for themselves when about to select a Fire Proof Safe, where such are most likely to be found.

NEW-YORK CITY.

Policemen Only to Politicians—Mayor Wood's Order.

Mayor Wood loses no opportunity to make himself popular. He issued an "Order" yesterday morning, which, if obeyed, will please every policeman. He plants in all hearts a little more kindly all voters. He has issued an order to the Police Department, which is more curt and emphatic than any order issued since every policeman has read the Riot Act, and people will wonder whether there is not a bit of Dunham about it. If the order is to be obeyed, however, the sudden revolution will unseat the life of the Department. Yesterday the men were quite lively as politicians. Handbills were thrown at them by "hosts" on meetings, distributed no doubt, have no Whig, no Democrat, no Hunker, no Wooly, no nothing but the policeman's duty. The following is the Order:

MAYOR'S OFFICE, NEW-YORK, Oct. 31, 1855.

Whereas, the right of suffrage and free exercise of opinion in the selection of candidates for office is claimed by policemen in common with other citizens, the privilege of active participation in partisan affairs is in equity and directly denied. In becoming members of the police, personal rights are given up for the public good, among others those appertaining to free political action. The policeman cannot be a politician. Present employment as such. He is not invested with the power of his office to overawe, to intimidate, or to influence the voter. It is his duty to protect every man in the exercise of these rights, that they may be interfered with by others, by a vote of the People. It has been represented to me that members of the Police Department have been in the practice of taking an active part in politics to the exclusion of the duty of election, and that the same Wards of the City citizens of opposite political creeds have been denied their protection, and at times virtually excluded from their polls. Now, to the object of this order is to give distinct notice that every member of the Police Department is equally entitled from me to the right to vote in common with all, and that on the day of election, November 6, the officers who may be stationed at each election place shall preserve the peace, protect every citizen in the exercise of his franchise, keep the ways free and open to every voter free from harass and from the intimidation, and grant to all citizens of every political sentiment, equal protection and liberty.

The penalty for violation of this order will be dismissal from office by the Board of Police Commissioners, upon the necessary proof that the offence has been committed.

By order,

FERNANDO WOOD, Mayor.

JOHN W. SHERMAN, Chief of Police.

Commissioners of Emigration.

The Commissioners of Emigration held their regular weekly meeting yesterday afternoon, Hon. G. F. TRAVERSE presiding. The following letter was received and read:

DEPARTMENT OF STATE, WASHINGTON, Oct. 26, 1855.

GEORGE F. TRAVERSE, Esquire, Sir:—In reply to your letter of the 19th inst. I have to inform you that this Department will with much pleasure afford the Commissioners of Emigration at New-York its assistance to the extent of transmitting to the United States Consuls in Germany, with proper instructions on the subject, any circulars which may be prepared and furnished by the said Commissioners for the purpose of preventing the commission of fraud upon emigrants by persons who have gone abroad with a view of establishing offices for the sale of tickets, or for making contracts for the transportation of such emigrants or their baggage through this country. Very respectfully yours,

W. L. MARCY.

Bailey's Police Court—The Bloodhound, Yesterday.

Henry Thomas—not the Belmont man, for Mr. Bailey is a fashionable—couldn't find $1000 bail, so Justice Connolly locked him up. And the reason why was a good one, if Catherine Jones (she is not white) tells the truth. Catherine says that Billy attempted a rape upon her, but when she manfully defended herself, Billy took her with the wash-dish, and stabbed her in the breast with his villainous jack-knife.

Patrick Gannon was then handed into the Centre-Street Health Hotel—not having a spare $500 about him, he gave a token of merit for the end she had in view, namely, a kiss, in recovery with Mistress Mary Anne Gannon, of No. 140 Mott-street. It was all a joke of yours, and Mary having a deep of French blood in her veins, did not refuse from delicacy, good-natedness, she said a curious thing to Mary Anne, and illustrated it with a cut—an ugly cut—with an open, long Mary's cheek!

Gus Kennedy—his father, for giving him such a name, deserves to be spanked in the severest language—pulled a knife, short of swearing—took his knife to Mary Anne Gannon, and Sylvester complains of the cut. Gus denied the charge, but his name was Gus Kennedy, and Justice Connolly, not finding the much-needed $500 about him, slapped him into the Tombs.

Jane Wilson—whose business belies her name, making as she evidences herself, "a bad one,"—was charged to be in possession of jewelry, hoop-petticoats and other chattels, of the "valley," of $61—which Valentine Hawkins, of No. 700 Forty-first-street, says belongs to him, the lady's $500, either, and so the lady boxed and slapped that night and will to-night sleep in the Tombs and gloomy Tombs.

We are sorry to see a man hard as should steal a brass apple or a silver tankard—but to steal a copper bolt, even through mouth $500.—Wm. Pearson of No. 56 Washington-street, says that Baker H. Gaines and Michael McCollum did it, however, and if we was found in their boot. Not exactly bids on hose belonging to Pearson, but on other bolts, and so the lady let loose. Justice Connolly, not finding the bolts, or bolters, 99½ on other bolts, and not willing to believe 100½ a warrant to arrest the bolters, made it with the other people's money, bolted with it, and left the lady in the lurch. It is a warrant for Wm. Pearson to have Gaines and McCollum in the Tombs, to answer that the one took and the other bolted with the money, and the lady bolted while he was out and stole $60 (bolts) and left the complaint in favor of Swinton Banks.

Gen. Rudolph Guard, Captain Wetmer, marched to Chelsea Park, Sixth Ward, yesterday. They numbered 45 men, and contended for 11 splendid prizes.

The Montgomery Guard at Quebec.

HOME FROM CAPTAIN MURPHY.

To the Editor of the New-York Daily Times:

The attention of the Montgomery Guard having been called to an article from the Quebec Colonist, relative to an invitation from Lieut.-Col. Cozzens, to visit and dine at the Citadel during their late visit there, desire to thank the Editor of that journal for a kind word in their behalf.

The "Guard" have still in their possession the notes of invitation from Lieut.-Col. Cozzens and officers, inviting them to dine, and particularly requesting the band to play some of their bad music in their hearing.

"Now, one of two things must have been the case." Lieut.-Col. Cozzens must have been inebriated when he wrote the note of invitation, or crazy when he penned the article in the Colonist. He can take either horn he pleases, with the assurance that if he expects to acquire a footing among the respectable citizens of Quebec by such vulgarity, he surely mistakes their good sense, and furnishes proof of his own want of that quality.

I remain, yours, &c.,

THOMAS S. MURPHY,
Captain of the Montgomery Guard.

ANOTHER EXPLANATION.

HOTEL FRENCHMEN HOUSE, Tuesday, Oct. 30, 1855.

To the Editor of the New-York Daily Times:

I casually noticed in your paper, this morning, an extract from the Montreal Gazette, in which there appeared a note from Col. Cozzens, to the editor of the Quebec Colonist, denying that he or any of his officers had invited the Montgomery Guard to dinner, during their stay in that city. Having just arrived myself from Quebec, I can explain, perhaps, the cause of a misunderstanding over which there yet hangs a little mystery. The truth is, that both the Montgomery Guard and Col. Cozzens have been the subjects of a harmless practical joke. Some wag, who thoroughly understood the amiable weaknesses of Col. Cozzens—a military snob of the first water—concocted the letter of invitation, and sent it to the Montgomery Guards. A rice, it seems, has been taken out of both parties, and has unexpectedly been made an item of gossip in the columns of the New-York Daily Times. Yours, H. OAKS.

The Seventeenth Ward Riot.

We have already noticed the riot which grew out of the meeting of the American Party in the Seventeenth Ward. It appears that upon the adjournment of the meeting, the attenders formed in procession and proceeded down the Bowery to Stanton-street. On arriving at the corner, a gang of rowdies rushed into the gathering and caught hold of several of the banners. After driving off these few "mobbites," the procession proceeded to First-avenue, when, on getting opposite Thirteenth-street, they were again assaulted, and several persons were beaten. Sundry policemen of the Ward now made their appearance, amongst them Lieut. Hiers, whose night it was off duty. Hereupon considerable of a row ensued, in which Lieut. Hiers, who was leading a person from the crowd, is said to have been struck with a stone. There were rumors of a grand attack having been made, but we can hardly consider that any serious consequences resulted, inasmuch as no report is made of the riot on the police returns of the District.

The Legal Rights Association,

Held a meeting last evening in Immanuel Presbyterian Church, (Rev. Mr. Wilson's,) near Bleecker-street.

Mr. T. L. Jennings was Chairman.

Rev. Mr. Wilson opened the meeting with prayer.

The meeting was addressed at some length by the Chairman, and afterwards by Mr. J. J. Simons, who delivered a most uninteresting harangue, making great professions as a "fister" and drawer of claret from noses of pale-faced monsters. Some person in the meeting called out that the speaker was a sneak. The speaker pocketed the compliment, and admitted afterwards to Rev. Mr. Wilson, that he was a sneak and a coward.

Mr. Gibbs made a few remarks and concluded by warning the people from riding in "Jim Crow Cars."

Mr. Tunis Campbell said that he believed the enemies of the black race had done more to turn the tide of public opinion in their favor within the last few years, than all the speeches that could be made at the meetings of the Legal Rights Society. He also supper once with a white man, and he felt that he was a man ever since, and the last man who insulted him in Broadway was ignorant of the fact that he had that supper. He urged upon the people to raise a good amount of money for the cause, and they might rest assured that railroad companies would make concessions when they saw the colored people putting a tangible value upon their rights.

The meeting concluded quietly, notwithstanding an attempt having been made by a man named Rollix, (not the ancient Historian,) to spoil the harmony which existed.

Accidental Fall.

As Patrick Laughlin, or Larkin, a laboring man, residing at No. 148 West Sixteenth-street, was at work for J. M. Bruen on the new Methodist Church, Seventh-avenue and Fourteenth-street, he fell from the scaffold of the second story and lodged upon the beams of the first story, severely injuring his back and one of his legs. He was conveyed to the City Hospital.

Coroner's Investigation.

THE BRUTAL MURDER OF THE COLORED MAN IN MOTT-ST.

Coroner Hilton continued the investigation as to the death of Charles Cole, the colored man, whose death resulted from the shameful beating which was described in full in the Times of yesterday morning. The testimony taken was very indefinite; it consisted as follows: Harriet Cole, wife of the deceased, related the circumstances of the crime, as told her by Cole, in much the same words as in our yesterday's edition. She stated that being much engaged in attending to him, she had neglected to see the Police about the matter. Several witnesses were sworn, who had heard of the assault immediately after it was made, but none saw it. The butchers employed at Shannon's slaughter-house swore that they neither heard of nor knew anything about it. The Jury returned a verdict of "Death by strangulation of the intestines from injuries inflicted by some person to the Jury unknown, Oct. 24, 1855." They also made the following recommendation: "Further, we ask the Mayor to offer a reward for the conviction of the guilty parties." The parties who had been arrested, were, upon the rendition of the above verdict, discharged.

SUICIDE BY TAKING PRUSSIC ACID.

Coroner O'Donnell held an inquest upon the body of James Walters, a native of Troy, N. Y., who yesterday morning committed suicide by taking prussic acid. It appeared from the testimony had in the case that deceased had lately become much straightened in circumstances, and could with difficulty only defray his necessary expenses. A few days since, he was arrested on complaint of Messrs. A. Murnos & Co. for obtaining $165 in goods and money under false pretences, on which charge he was held to bail. In conversation with a friend that same evening he asserted his innocence, but declared his intention to commit suicide, which he afterwards did. Verdict, "Suicide by taking prussic acid." Deceased who was somewhat above 3 clerk in the employ of George Law, leaves a wife and two children.

THE WILLIAM TAPSCOTT AFFAIR.

Coroner Gamble yesterday concluded the investigation as to the circumstances of the affray on the ship William Tapscott, in which the sailor Thomas Williams lost his life. The ship having sailed, and no witnesses being discoverable, the Jury rendered a verdict of "Death from a wound inflicted by some person to them unknown." The Jury further censure "the officers of the ship for not causing information of the occurrence to be sent on shore, and call upon the proper authorities to secure their arrest on their return to this port.

Anniversary of the Southern Aid Society.

This Society held its second anniversary last evening, in the Church of Rev. Dr. Parker, Fourth-avenue.

The exercises were opened by Rev. Dr. Skinner. After singing, prayer was offered by Rev. Mr. Hanna, of Baltimore.

The Treasurer's report was then presented by Gerard Hallock, Esq.

The balance in the Treasury at last Anniversary, was $[illegible] 54; received since $9,965 27; making the total cash resources of the year $9,207 81. To this must be added subscriptions uncollected, $1,210; making a total during the year, of $10,417 81. The disbursements during the year just closing, have been as follows: Sixth Presbyterian Church, Washington City, $300; Rev. G. W. Herlan, Charleston, $150; Rev. W. King, Garden Valley, Texas, $150; Rev. Mr. Gantlemen, Western Georgia, $300; Synod of East Tennessee, $400; Synod of West Tennessee, $400; Rev. LONG ISLAND.

Precocious Villains—One Boy Stabbed by Another.

A boy, named James Dalton, was stabbed by another boy, named Thomas Wright, on Fulton-avenue near Navy-street, yesterday forenoon, and seriously though not mortally wounded. The wound was inflicted in the left breast and entered the lungs. The parties to this affair have been at enmity for some time, and yesterday Wright whipped a younger brother of Dalton, and Dalton, in turn, attempted to punish Wright for it, when the knife was used. Wright was arrested and committed to await the result of the injuries to Dalton.

WEDNESDAY, Oct. 31—P. M.

The steamer Atlantic left port at noon today for Liverpool, having on freight $625,250 in Gold, and a large mail for England and the Continent. There was some additional business for this opportunity in Sterling Exchange early this forenoon, at 108¾@108⅞ ₩ cent. Bank bills just received from the South were done at the outside figures, and prime Commercial bills at 109⅞. We heard of no transactions in Francs after the close of business yesterday. The receivers of bills from the South, both French and English, were generally anxious to make sales for this packet, as further considerable remittances are known to be on the way, to come in competition with fresh supplies of Grain and Flour. Exchange making here. The Money Market was exceedingly active today. The disbursements on California drafts were large, and the demand for money among the Brokers a little more general.

The California houses found a good demand for their bullion on arrival, though it is not certain that it was taken for immediate export. Both Banking and Brokers in the Hanover-street occasionally buy on speculation, as in anticipation of orders for shipment. The receipts of the Assay Office were over $600,000, and no part of the Dust ordered into Coin. At the Stock Exchange, the business [illegible] the Board closed in the afternoon quietly, but even in value. Erie 40⅞, Reading 94⅞, Illinois Centrals 76⅞, Michigan Southern 90, Toledo 67⅞, Galena 114 and Indiana State fives 78⅞. Other State Stocks weak at 94⅞ for Virginias and Tennessees, 86⅞@86⅞ for Missouris.

The November interest payments will be very considerable to-morrow. The quarterly interest on the City Debt will be paid at the Mechanics' Bank. The half yearly coupons on the 6 ₩ cents. of the New-York Central will be paid by Duncan, Sherman & Co. The same house pay the principal and interest of the old debt of the Rochester, Lockport and Niagara Falls Road. The Manhattan Company pay the coupons on the Erie First Mortgage Bonds. The Ohio Trust Company pay the coupons on the Mad River and Lake Erie Railroad, the Cleveland and Pittsburg, the Little Miami, and the Hamilton and Dayton. In addition to other payments by Atwood & Co., announced heretofore, they will pay the coupons on the Central Ohio Railroad Bonds. The Toledo Rail Company, No. 18 William-street, will pay the coupons on the Junction Ohio Bonds.

Mr. J. P. Cromwell has been elected President of the Bank of the Commonwealth, in lieu of Mr. Wilson, who resigned, and whose resignation takes effect from to-day. Mr. Cromwell has been hitherto Vice-President, and in the President's absence acting President.

Judge Mitchell, of the Supreme Court, has denied the injunction asked for by Mr. J. Thompson, against the issue of the new State Loan by the Canal Fund Commissioners.

Messrs. Wells, Fargo & Co. inform us that they brought from the mining districts in California to the City of San Francisco, in the month of September, Gold Dust to the value of $3,116,113, and carried into the interior over a million of dollars in coin from the San Francisco Branch Mint. We learn through the same house, and from other quarters, that the Nicaragua steamers of 5th of October, now due at this port, will bring very little Gold. The distrust continued in the safety of the Nicaraugua route, on account of Walker's expedition, and the Insurance Agencies at San Francisco were indisposed to take the risks, growing out of political trouble at San Juan. The non-arrival of the upward bound steamer of the 2d September, also discouraged both Gold shipments and Passengers. The cause of delay was no doubt the Cholera epidemic, which was fearfully raging on the steamer as she passed Acapulco.

We are again indebted to Mr. Cusco, the Sub-Treasurer, and to Mr. Russell, his Cashier, for a general statement of the business of the Department in October:

Balance first of the month	$7,152,677
Custom Receipts	3,490,728
Other receipts	847,753
Total	$11,514,158
Payments of the month	3,894,427
Balance to Nov. 1	$7,619,731
To Cr. of Disbursing Officers	1,625,244
To Cr. of Interest Fund	28,677
To Cr. of Assay Office	1,459,616
Bullion in Assay Office	2,834,939
Total Gold Nov. 1	$13,068,197

The Custom Duties, as above, were larger by $914,376 than in the same month in 1854.

Statement of Business at the United States Assay Office, for the month ending Oct. 31, 1855:

Steam Navigation in New-Granada.

To the Editor of the New-York Daily Times:

The George Law brings fresh intelligence from New-Granada of importance to our merchants. The great undertaking of opening the old Spanish canal, which connects the Magdalena River and the Bay of Carthagena, is soon to be completed. Advices from the Superintendent of the Canal, Mr. Gillmy, are such as to induce the belief that the New-Granada Canal and Steam Navigation Company will run their steamers through this Canal, and up the river to Honda, by the 1st of March next. By this splendid steamship canal, the rich products of the interior of New-Granada will find a safe and rapid shipment to the Caribbean Sea.

The intelligence is also to the effect that the steamer Sinay Wells, sent out by the Company and intended for the trade, is safe at Barangquilla, and is now traversing the waters of the Magdalena River. The Company will be prepared to use the Canal the moment that it is ready, as we are informed that three more iron steamers for the river and canal are now being constructed, which will be ready by the first of March next. The people of the country are said to be highly gratified at the flattering prospects which the energy of their Anglo-Saxon brethren hold out to them in forwarding the improvements in their country. Cotton Crop Movements.

From Wright's New-York Circular, Oct. 31.

On the night of 24th inst. a frost passed over North and South Carolina, Georgia, and some portions of Alabama. We are not yet advised that it reached the great Southwestern cotton region. So far as heard from, we have told the truth—but been in a trifling error—but optional differ widely in estimating the loss upon the probable extent of the crop. We do not learn that it was preceded by rain, or that it occurred on more than one night. The letters from Charleston and Savannah up to 24th, seem to make very light of it, and the early effect on the Southern markets has been, perhaps, somewhat by some experts, the doubts which would otherwise have followed the receipt of the Atlanta advices for more great. In a few days we shall get more information on the subject, and be able to form a better opinion as to the probable extent of the damage done. We have the most cause from Georgia and South Carolina that planters are becoming dissatisfied with the rates now obtainable for their crops, and are show-
